Recommendation Letter

Ms. Rina Rai is my student whom I know well. For the past two years, I've been teaching her Economics. Her academic credentials demonstrate that she is an outstanding student. Over the course of my two years as her high school teacher, she has demonstrated leadership and dependability. She has taken part in a range of extracurricular activities and has acquired a number of awards and titles especially on public speaking and elocution.

Her command of the English language is outstanding. She has spent her free time borrowing books from the library and reading novels, biographies, and memoirs. She has a large enough vocabulary. Ms. Rina, in my opinion, was one of the most dedicated and focused pupils. I can prove you that if she were accepted into any college; she would not only be a number, but also a resource. In school, she has been able to establish herself as an excellent example of integrity, honesty, and teamwork. She is a highly devoted and eager learner. I absolutely believe that assisting her in any way possible will never be in vain. She is also one of a kind; a student who never lets anyone down. She was cheerful, respectful with everyone around the school. She is very resilient and gets well-adjusted with the group with her good social skills.

I would be delighted to provide you with whatever information you want on her abilities. I am confident that her academic career must be bright and successful.

Sincerely Yours,
Mukti Sapkota
(HoD of Economics)
